European schools have a special status. The legal foundation lies in the ‘Convention defining the Statute of the European Schools’, an agreement under international law. Its primary objective is to teach the children of the employees of the European Union/institutions together. The qualifications are equivalent to German school qualifications.

Other schools offer educational achievements with double qualifications. This means the simultaneous award of the German Abitur and another educational achievement (e.g. the French Baccalauréat or the Italian Maturità).

In addition to the private institutions, there are numerous publically-funded schools that offer bilingual teaching. In the Frankfurt/Rhine-Main region alone there are more than 50 publically-funded schools that offer certain subjects in a foreign language (e.g. English, French, Spanish or Italian).

Children learn very quickly, particularly at an early age. This is why there are also bilingual primary schools as well as bilingual nursery schools and day-care centers.
